

Capacitors Design and Material

Capacitor performance specifications do not specify materials, processes, or design controls that must be used by the part vendor. Because of acquisition reform, the military performance specifications (MIL-PRFs) now specify end item performance requirements only. Materials, processes, and design controls also vary between vendors and change with time. If the user needs to know such information, consult the datasheet and vendor.